09/10: TWLOHA's Jamie Tworkowski Kicks Off Fall Tour During National Suicide Prevention Week

September 10, 2010

To Write Love On Her Arms' Founder Jamie Tworkowski kicked off his fall tour Wednesday night to a standing room only crowd at Washington State University. It's no coincidence that he launched his nationwide campus tour during National Suicide Prevention Week, a cause to which he is deeply committed.

In dozens of events each year, Tworkowski speaks out to college audiences about the struggles of depression, addiction, and related mental health issues, sharing stories of recovery and delivering a message of hope. Tworkowski who lives, breathes and sings the mantra, "You are not alone and this is not the end of your story," talks about the encounter with one woman who inspired a vast nonprofit movement dedicated to reaching young people who feel lost. In his heartfelt presentations, he taps into the common humanity we share, that we experience many of the same fears and dreams.

Over the last two years, Tworkowski has responded to 80,000 messages from 40 countries and brought candid conversations to concerts, universities, festivals and even churches. This fall, Tworkowski will connect young people in universities through a bevy of events. TWLOHA has devoted orange, "I AM ALIVE" T-shirts in honor of National Suicide Prevention Week, which are available on tour or online at www.twloha.com.

Check out the vast array of stops on TWLOHA's fall tour. Want to bring campus speaker Jamie Tworkowski's powerful message to your campus? Contact Keppler Speakers bureau for more information.
